

REVEALED! HIDDEN SECRETS TO COMMUNICATING WITH PETS

SEND MESSAGES TO ANIMALS

Imagine how great your life will be -- and how wonderful your relationships with your animals could be -- if you only knew how to speak their language?

Animals are brought into your life for a reason. They are your Teachers, Healers, Angels and Guides. When you learn how to recognize, respect and revere them as the spiritual beings they truly are, they can help you become a better human. And when you learn to speak their language, you'll be a better communicator too!

As pet parents, we want nothing more than for our animals to be healthy, behave well and be happy.

Like the parents of children, animals need to be able to tell you things. You need to know what's bothering them, where they hurt, what happened, what makes them feel sad and what makes them happy.

Just like human children, the animals in your life try to communicate with you all the time because they have a lot to share with you. Some of their wisdom is funny, loving and kind, and some of what they have to say is life changing, profound and insightful.

Learning how to communicate with animals is important because people misunderstand their animals all the time. That leads to a lot of tail chasing on expensive guesswork with vets and trainers, investments in unnecessary equipment (or replacing damaged items). Without knowing what your pet is thinking, you can get into interesting and sometimes awful predicaments.

Because your animals reflect your own imbalances, wounds and issues, they also become your best teachers and healers. You can make their life and your own a lot easier, more fun and healthier through the power of a conversation.

Talking with animals and connecting at a deeper level helps you be a better, more balanced, kind and considerate person. It also helps you be healthier and clearer about who you really are, and who your animal really is.

Doing this one thing right will completely transform the quality of your and your pet's life.

I've spent the last 30 years of my life helping people with their animals all over the world. People contact me every day desperate for insight into why their animals are sick, ill or dying, why they behave in a dangerous or confusing way, feeling worried they are missing something important because their animal seems depressed or unhappy.

You may be having problems with sick animals, animals that your vet is having trouble helping heal...

You may be struggling with obedience, training or behavior issues, when everything you've tried so far hasn't worked very well and you don't know what to do next....

You may be worried about a pending euthanasia decision, you may be in agony of indecision about whether it's time to put your animal to sleep or not, wondering if they are suffering. How do you know if what you're doing to help them is actually helping – or causing them more pain?

You may be trying to boost your performance in the show ring, and wondering why your horse or dog just can't seem to make the grade, resists training or doesn't improve beyond a certain level.

The saddest most painful consultations I do are the ones where people contacted me too late. If we had talked with their animal before things got so bad, we might have been able to save their life.

Wouldn't you love to have a more direct connection with your animal?

What if you could simply ask them what was wrong, where they hurt, how they felt, why they behaved the way they did?

How would knowing how to do this yourself change your life? You would be able to help your animal to feel safer, more loved, respected and understood.

Maybe in a moment of desperation you wished you could just magically stick a phone inside your pet's head so you could know what they're thinking!

Good news! You CAN! It's easy to learn how to hear your pets thoughts, no phones required.

The HOW of learning to recognize, respect and revere them is in discovering who they really are by knowing how to commune with them.

You owe it to yourself and to your animals to make the effort. They work hard to be your best friend. They love you unconditionally. They are there for you when you're sad, lonely or confused. You should return the favor!

They don't care if you're having a bad hair day, are over or underweight, and they couldn't care less if you aren't wearing any makeup or are going bald.

What do they need from you in return? All they ask is that you to be their best friend. And to do that, you simply need to know their language so you can understand them at a deep level and receive the wisdom, healing, love and inspiration they have to share with you every day.

Are you having problems with your pet?

The first place to begin solving things is always through communication.

Learning how to talk with animals saves you money, energy and time because by taking the time to discuss things with them, they can help you discover what the real problem actually is from their viewpoint (instead of your guessing or assuming). Just as you would talk things over with your best friend, your teacher, boss or coworker, a senior parent or a child, if you don't connect and communicate up front so you understand each other, then you can go way off track quickly. You can make things worse in a hurry, or end up wasting a great deal of time, energy and money with little or no result.

Animals continually share their thoughts and feelings with you every day. And in many ways, you are already receiving their messages but you may not feel clear or consciously aware enough (yet) to decipher and filter the information properly so you can know what they are saying.

The key is to become more conscious, more fully present so you can enjoy a direct energetic connection. To do that, all you need is to take a little time to learn and practice the tools and techniques you need to succeed, and which you are about to learn.

Animals are telepathic.

Telepathy is just a fancy way of saying that you can feel, sense and hear others over a distance. You do this every day, all day long, your whole life. You were born knowing how to do this. You may have shut down your senses in some way, or lost conscious awareness of how you're actually receiving or sharing information with others, but you're still doing it.

Your animals can see what is in your mind's eye, and they easily feel what you are feeling. Have you ever noticed how your pet disappears when it's time to go to the veterinarian or when it's time for a bath? Or how they can appear almost magically when you have something good to eat?

I once worked with a blind and deaf cocker spaniel. We were in the living room, and his person and I started discussing one of his favorite treats, cheese. The next thing we knew, he got up and headed to the kitchen where he sat down and eagerly waited on us to come open the refrigerator and get him a cheese snack!

This isn't an accident or a coincidence. If they are paying attention, they always know what's going on with you.

And when you learn how to pay attention, you can know what's going on with them too.

Today I invite you to step into the wonderful amazing world of animal communication.

Animal communication is The Essential Key to enjoying loving, happy and healthy relationships with animals.

I'm Val Heart. At various times in my long career as a leading, internationally known animal communication expert, I've been called The Real Dr. Doolittle™ and Animal Communicator to the Stars. I'm a bestselling author and co-author, and am the founder of the HEART System™ for solving problems with pets. I'm also the host and founder of the Animal Talk Coaching Club, where students around the world come for education, community, mentoring and inspiration.

I'm known for my work with underperforming horses, because with my 5 step Equine Peak Performance system I can help them achieve their true potential and love their work with joy, dignity and enthusiasm.

People all over the world seek me out because they care about their animals who are struggling. They've heard that I can solve problems in minutes, rather than years. The way I do that is by giving your animals a voice so they can tell you how they feel, if they are in pain, and what confuses them or makes them sad.

Before knowing how to communicate with animals, I remember yearning for a more fulfilling, intimate relationship with them. I wanted to understand what they knew about the world around us that I didn't know. They have viewpoints, insights and wisdom all their own, and I wanted to learn from them.

One day, I had a life transforming experience when I heard a voice. There's a scripture in the Bible where a donkey was telling the person who was riding him not to go to the city where he was going because that was not the calling; that it was not the prophet's mission. And the donkey talked to him and the prophet heard him.

Some people laughed at that. But I know, on that one special day in January 1993 that I heard a voice from an animal as clear as the human voices I hear on a regular basis. And that changed the course of my life. I never saw animals in quite the same way again. The wall of limitation came down and I experienced a moment of enlightenment, an epiphany.

What happened? I'm glad you asked because it's an amazing story.

On that chilly overcast, rainy day in January 1993, I was helping my friend who had an injured horse. We were in her barn on the outskirts of San Antonio, Texas. She was working with her gorgeous glossy black Percheron mare Valkyrie who had suffered a serious physical injury in her hip that wasn't healing.

Clear as a bell, in a breakthrough moment, I heard the horse share her heart with me. She told me all about the horrible things that had happened to her, how upsetting it was, how angry she felt and how much it hurt. Her body was hurting but the real pain was in her memories, her emotions and in her mind.

She needed someone to hear her, to understand, to care enough to talk to her. And I did, by connecting and understanding her at a very deep spiritual level.

And as we watched and as I listened to her story, the fist-sized wound on her hip that had not healed in months? It literally disappeared before our eyes... all because, for the first time, a human was able to hear the horse's heart and listen to her story. She finally felt respected and understood, and she could let the trauma go.

All of us have this capacity, the ability to know our animal's thoughts, feelings and experiences. We are connected with animals at the deepest energetic level. The problem is that most of us have not discovered how to create the opening to experience the depth and the truth of the connection at a heart to heart, mind to mind level.

Scientists have discovered what animal lovers already know in our heart of hearts: animals are sentient, wise, intelligent creatures. Plants communicate with each other about insect invaders and other problems in various parts of the garden or forest – that has been documented. Dolphins can tell us about things they've never seen with their physical eyes. Gorillas taught sign language can make up new words to say what they need to express if they haven't been taught the word or phrase for it.

Animals clearly think about things in their life, they feel emotions, they reason situations through to figure out how to solve puzzles and games. Often their answers and inquiries will delight and surprise you!

It's important to realize that the being sitting beside you currently disguised as an animal is way more intelligent than you may realize.

And, they can help you beyond your wildest dreams.

Do you have any idea who you could be living with? When you peel the curtain back and see beyond the veil, you may find a master healer, a wise teacher, your very own best guru and you don't even have to climb a mountain, sequester yourself in a monastery or go to an ashram.

Do you ever get the sense that your pet is trying to tell you something... but you just don't get it?

Well I've got news for you – they ARE trying to tell you something. Animals spend their entire lives trying to break through so you can hear them. They want to help you. They work hard to heal you, to inspire you, to share their wisdom with you.

You can receive the wisdom your pet wants to share, learn to take actions that improve their behavior and even help them heal. You can even experience deeper spiritual meaning, clarity and peace of mind. How? By learning to speak their language.

Let me share with you a few things that you can do that will deepen your relationship with them far beyond the norm.

So the next time you are with your dog or your cat or horse or bird or whatever animal is around you, wild or domestic, you will know how to recognize, respect and revere them for who they truly are.

You want to learn how to listen not just with your ears and eyes but with your whole heart.

What Animal Communication Actually Is

Animal communication is a telepathic sharing of energy, impressions, feelings, concepts and ideas. If you're alive reading this right now, then trust me, you are already communicating telepathically by sending, sharing and receiving energy with everyone around you.

Animal Communication is NOT mind control. And just because you tell an animal something you want them to do, it doesn't mean that they will do it. They have their own viewpoint, understanding, concerns, needs and wants.

Telepathic communication works by sharing your energy with each other, your heart to their heart, your mind to theirs. It doesn't just focus on your words or language, it's actually an energetic exchange of information. Animals don't always think in thoughts, they think in feelings.

For instance, do you know how it feels to feel sad? To grieve? To feel angry? To feel upset, or worried or frightened?

If you can find these emotions in yourself, then you already know how they feel. That means you can easily learn to recognize these energies in others with just a little practice.

It's time to learn about the importance of understanding and working with emotions and energy. You'll discover more about your own individual Signature Style in the How to Talk to Animals Beginning Foundations, Advanced Topics Courses and the Animal Talk Coaching Club.

Understanding feelings and how to work with them is critical to your success in talking with animals. The point is that if you can feel these energies and get clear about them, then you can in fact sense what your animal is thinking and feeling.

It's important to learn how to be emotionally peaceful and comfortable with what you're feeling before you'll be able to feel someone else's emotions accurately. All beginning students have to do the inner work on this issue.

Animals share energy, thoughts, feelings, understand concepts, beliefs and attitudes. Once you know how to tune in the right way, you can access their knowledge, wisdom and viewpoints.

Saying that, some animals are much easier to talk to than others. It depends on what they think of humans and what they expect from you. Once you know the basics of how to communicate with animals, you'll need to learn how to carry on a good and productive conversation with them.

Animal Talk isn't just for fun! It's also about changing behavior, improving training, preparing them for transition, reconnecting in the afterlife... you can even help your pet heal when they're sick -- when you know how to do it right.

Let the journey begin...

3 Fundamental Animal Talk Principles Are The Basis For All Relationships.

Once you understand these 3 Principles, I'll teach you how to use them to deliver a message to any animal at any time, using my simple 3 Simple Steps process.

A lot of students get extraordinary results with their animals just by using these 3 steps. That's because these 3 Principles will help bridge the communication gap between you and everyone in your life, because as you'll discover if you choose to continue your training with me, communicating with animals is a spiritual journey that can and will change your life.

Principle #1: Animals SEE You.

Okay, I can hear you thinking (because I'm psychic, of course!):

"But Val, of course they see me! If I'm in their line of sight, if they're looking at me, they see me and I see them! What do you mean?"

Let me explain so you can understand what animals REALLY see and what I see when I connect and communicate with animals!

Have you seen the movie Avatar? It's one of my favorite movies. There is a scene in it where the native people called the Navi say "I SEE YOU".

It means, they GET you. They SEE the essence of you, your soul, your Spirit, WHO you really are. It's deep, it's spiritual, it's your HEART, your Truth connecting you with another being at a deep spiritual level.

When I say animals SEE you, that's what I mean. They see through to the heart of you, your essence, your Spirit.

Of course, they also see your body language just like you do theirs. They watch you, like you do them.

They also see deeply into your heart, your mind, your spirit. They read your unique energetic frequencies, the part of you that makes you YOU.

We are spiritual beings disguised in physical human bodies. They are spiritual beings disguised as animals.

So, Principle #1 is that animals SEE who you really are, both physically AND subtly. If your body language is closed off, they sense that. If you are feeling impatient with them, they feel it. They see your truth.

The real question is, can you see them?

Look at an animal right now, a living animal or a picture of an animal is fine. You can even do this with a picture of a deceased animal. Notice what you “see” about their energy. Take a minute and use your imagination to see their aura, the energy field around their body. If you could see it, what would it look like? How big would it be? What color would it be? Does it seem strong and vibrant or soft, quiet, peaceful? Is it a solid field of energy and/or color, or is it broken, weak in some areas, strong in other areas? What else do you notice?

Principle #2: Animals HEAR You!

If you call their name, clap your hands, make noises, shout or yell at them... I if they are in earshot and aren't deaf, then yes, of course, they can hear you!

But let's dive in a little deeper. There is a major difference between physical hearing and subtle hearing.

Your tone of voice, volume, timbre, dialect, cadence, are all things that make up your voice and what they hear physically.

Subtly, they also hear your intention, your meaning behind the odd combination of sounds coming out of your mouth which could be very different from someone else saying the exact same thing! They get the context, attitude and beliefs behind your words.

You can tell them the same exact story (cue or signal) and they'll receive it differently depending on what energy and context you put into it.

Think for a minute... How does a parent know when their baby's cry means "I'm wet" or "I'm just having a bad day" or "I'm in pain" or "I'm scared?"

Ever wonder how a parent actually knows the difference? They are listening with their heart.

Principle #2 is that animals HEAR you, both physically AND subtly.

The real QUESTION is, can you hear them?

Imagine what might happen if you could magically put a microphone inside their minds, what do you think you might hear them say? Would they have an accent?

What might they be thinking about? If you greeted them or asked them a question, what do you imagine they would say in return?

With the proper training, you can know the exact context behind the sounds they are making, both subtle and physical, on the inside and on the outside.

Principle #3: Animals can FEEL you.

This is the BIG one that most people overlook or are simply clueless about, and it could easily be the most important Principle. I'm talking about emotions, feelings, the sharing of energy, life resonance, your chi.

Emotions are simply energy in motion. They are generated inside our body by our neural network and endocrine system, among other things; they are then held resonating deeply in the body in various places; and, they are expressed through the body's pores, scent glands and via physical expression like body language.

Emotional energy can get disconnected from our conscious mind and awareness. Mentally you may not be conscious of what you're feeling in any given moment. In our society, all too often we are trained to suppress our emotions, to be polite and politically correct at all times, to put a mask on so others don't know what we're really thinking or feeling. And when you have many emotions running rampant below the surface, you may not be able to even give what you are feeling a name or clear expression.

One of the gifts of animals is they can FEEL. They feel your heart, your spirit, and all the emotions held and expressed through various places in your body.

Have you ever noticed that when you're upset, or sad, or in pain, that your animal will act differently? Maybe they come check on you... put their head in your lap offering comfort. Sometimes they will come stare at you for a long time, trying so hard to share their heart with you, to tell you something they want you to know.

Did you know that animals think humans are incredibly dense? They worry about us, a lot. They can tell when we are at risk of getting sick, or something is going wrong in our lives or relationships... And they do their best to breakthrough our barriers so they can help us heal.

When your innate ability to subtly see, hear and feel them is compromised, you become incoherent and confusing to animals because you are disconnected from your bodies, your mind is not fully present, you aren't really listening and you can't pay attention because you're too distracted. You wind up being scattered all over the place. Often you don't even know what you're saying or thinking!

You need to help them understand you by simplifying your thoughts, gaining clarity about what you really want/need, being fully present, mentally quiet and receptive. If you want to send a coherent, understandable message to an animal, it's your job to do your inner work to set things up right inside yourself so they can understand you.

So to recap, the 3rd Principle is your animals can FEEL you.

The real question is... Can YOU feel them?

Imagine looking across a room at a friend or stranger and that you immediately know or have a sense of what they are feeling, whether they are angry, sad, depressed, excited, happy, lighthearted, or in love... If you can do that, and I know you can, then you really can do this!

When you really get good at it, then it's no longer your imagination, it's the Truth and you become a real animal communicator!

Now you know the 3 Fundamental Principles to communicating with all animals: See - Hear - Feel. Practice them frequently, with every animal teacher you meet.

Next, you are ready to learn how to send a direct message to any animal, anywhere, any time!

How to Send a Message in 3 Easy Steps So You Can Deliver a Powerful Message

Talking to animals is really easy once you understand the concepts. Any animal lover can learn how and you don't have to be psychic or play woo woo games all day or wear beads and feathers or consult a crystal ball. It doesn't take much time to do either!

Remember that if your animals are paying attention to you, they already have some clues about what you're thinking and how you're feeling. They know things about you that you don't even know! They see inside your mind's eye (the images on your mental monitor). They feel the emotions you're resonating with. They hear the words coming out of your mouth and reverberating inside your head. They do their very best to make sense of what you're thinking, from their viewpoint.

To send a message to an animal, all you have to do is:

1. GET CLEAR! First get clear within yourself about what you want to tell them and why it's important. Get their attention so they are listening to you and aren't distracted.

TIP: Consider the story or message from their viewpoint, not just your own.

2. TELL THE STORY! While you talk it through out loud, take time to see it happening in your mind's eye like you are shooting your own movie video. Be sure to feel the feelings that you want them to feel while you tell the story so they know if it's good/happy/positive story or bad/painful/ negative message of warning.

TIP: If you are working with a behavior problem, you can explore the best case scenario about what you want to have happen ideally. You can also explore the worst case scenario with the consequences or risks clearly presented. This way they can be better informed, know what they didn't know before, and can make better decisions for themselves.

3. TEST IT! This isn't rocket science. Animal communication is highly subjective, feeling based, energetic communication from heart to heart, mind to mind. This isn't mind control! Look for anything different. There could be changes in mood, energy or attitude.

They may do exactly what you told them, or they may not, depending on their viewpoint, whether they agree with you or not, or they may be confused if you haven't been clear enough. Your job is to inform them properly so they can make better choices on their own, and understand the consequences of their actions.

TIP: During the story and afterward, practice being sensitive to their concerns, mood and their energy in response. If you feel any hesitation, wariness, caution or pushback, then stop and ask about what's come up.

Did you go too fast? Where were you not clear enough? Did you touch on something that is worrisome to them? Notice where you were in the story when something shifted, and simply stop to ask them for help understanding their viewpoint. Be in the space of it with them and see what comes up for you to know, consider or do.

See how easy it is? You can do this! Sending a message to an animal is as easy as 1-2-3 when you know how.

Get Clear -- Tell the Story -- Test It.

Learning animal communication is a spiritual journey, and it's also a great deal of fun because animals will tell you the most amazing things! Knowing just these 3 things will help you see the world from a whole new perspective.

If your goal is to master animal communication, then you should know that this is only the beginning.

It gets even more fun when you learn how to receive their messages back so you can enjoy a two way dialogue. Imagine talking to a whole group of animals, a pack, herd, flock, etc.! You can hear their jokes, their concerns, how they feel about the worlds around them, and who among them is strong, and who is in trouble and needs help. In a remarkably short period of time, you can learn how to receive messages telepathically too. Soon you'll find yourself talking with animals as easily as chatting with your best friend!

Remember that TRUE heart to heart, mind to mind communication is always a two way street. What you need to tell them is only half the story. What they need to tell you is equally important.

Mastering the art of animal communication is similar to mastering the art of tai chi chuan or qi gong or the practice of medicine or engineering or anything else worth really investing yourself in. It simply requires your dedication and commitment, opportunities to experience excellent education from really good teachers, and regular practice to master your skills.

Animals need us and we need them. With just a few more learned skills, you will begin communicating with animals at a deeper level so you can experience a beautiful, mutually beneficial dialogue and relationship with the pets you love.

In the How to Talk to Animals System, I teach students how to hear their animal's emotions, wisdom and thoughts so that you know where problems are really coming from, so you know what to do to help, and what not to do.

If you truly want to be able to communicate with your animals, so that you can connect more deeply and take better care of their needs, you don't want to skip this important step. Animal communication is the key to a lasting bond and learning this skill can save you time and money and could even save your animal's life!
